Dooyeweerd stands firmly in the Dutch Reformed tradition and a very important figure in this was Abraham Kuyper (1837-1920). He was primarily a politician—being Holland's Prime Minister from 1901 to 1905—but he strongly believed that Christian principles should affect every area of life—including politics—and to this end Dooyeweerd's philosophy is unusual and interesting in several ways: 1. It might be the best philosophy of everyday life yet available.

With Pragmatism,

Phenomenology and

Existentialism, it takes everyday life seriously but,

The consistent life ethic, or the consistent ethic of life is an ideology that opposes abortion, capital punishment, assisted suicide, and euthanasia. Adherents are opposed, at the very least, to unjust war, while some adherents also profess pacifism, or opposition to all war. The term was popularized in 1983 by the Catholic Cardinal Joseph Bernardin to express an

Herman, Jonathan ; Afterlife in Taoism . In Taoism, life and death are merely two aspects of reality, the unchanging Tao. Death is simply a transformation from being to non-being; from yang to yin. Taoism teaches that humans ought to accept life and death as complementary aspects of the Tao. Death should be neither feared nor desired.
